

CHAS speakers on standby

☒ Children's Hospice Association Scotland (CHAS) is on a mission to spread the word about its children's hospice services in Scotland. It has trained a volunteer army to deliver talks and speciality workshops to schools, youth clubs and adult groups, and is ready to take bookings across Scotland for the months ahead.

Pippa Johnston, CHAS Fundraising Manager for South East Scotland, said, "Speaking to community groups is one of the best ways to let people know that the two CHAS children's hospices, Rachel House and Robin House, are hugely positive places.

"We are looking to speak to new groups as well as revisit old friends who may have had a CHAS speaker in the past. There are always plenty of new family stories and service developments updates and we will travel anywhere in Scotland.

"Talks are also a great way for CHAS to thank the Scottish public for their fantastic support. If you have fundraised for CHAS we would be delighted to arrange a presentation to your group or workplace."
