

Five things you need to know today

The Scotland rugby team play France at the Stade de France in Paris today at the start of the Six Nations.

According to the BBC the Blindcraft factory will close following the decision by workers not to accept the three day working week. We told you a little of the story about Blindcraft last month and will have an update for you at the beginning of the week.

There are planned protests in town today against potential cuts in library services, on what is called National Libraries Day.

Edinburgh to Glasgow rail passengers suffered cancellations last night due (yet again) to flooding at Winchburgh Tunnel and Glasgow Queen Street station.

✖ Michael Jackson asked 'What have we done to the world?'. Bob Dylan told us 'The answer is blowin' in the wind'. This display at The Royal Botanic Garden Edinburgh looks at how the natural world and future of our planet have been highlighted within song lyrics.

Part of Let's Get Lyrical in our City of Literature, the display runs for the month of February.