

Five things you need to know today

☒ Photographs are one of our big loves at The Reporter. So today we bring you a photo with a question attached. Actually a couple of questions. This plane was sitting on the tarmac at Edinburgh Airport last night. Is it the official Iron Maiden plane? If so – why was it here? They are not due to play in Scotland for another couple of months and that is in Glasgow. So maybe they were here to show their support for one of the political parties campaigning this weekend? Or is it cover for the Duke & Duchess of Cambridge....

Lovely images of Saturday's Beltane Festival here.

Somebody called Dan lives in Warriston..... according to the photo on Andy A's Flickr photostream....

Perhaps you have some Edinburgh photos? Then upload them to our Flickr Photostream please and share them with everyone else!

Oh and our Fifth thing you must know today – we now have 2007 followers on Twitter.... Yippee! Thank you to all of you for following all the things we tweet and retweet. You will see that we have also added some advertising opportunities on our site with the help of Rick at Addiply. We hope some of you might think to take advantage of these. Our website is now on view to around 20,000 readers per month so your advert would be visible on each page click – and there are many more of those than just 20,000!
