Excitement and pride has feverishly spread throughout the country with the SNP winning a landslide victory in the Parliament elections. With an independence referendum on the cards a lot will be changing for the Parliament, our country, and in turn our business.

Thrive for Business Ltd, the networking organisation that create long-lasting business relationships, host regular events with at least one senior representative from a company to speak about a topic relating to the particular event.

Thrive are particularly delighted to be welcoming Colin Chisholm from the Scottish Parliament who will surely spark a mass of discussion and debate at this networking event.

So how will the dramatic turn of Scotland gaining independence and separating from their English allies affect our businesses and organisations? If you want to voice your opinions or simply listen to what shall be discussed, make sure you are there as places are filling fast.
