

Bat Boy: The Musical preview

The MGA Academy of Performing Arts on Balgreen Road is home to many talented performers and this week they're taking their abilities to new pastures. Or should we say darker pastures?

The full-time students are producing their own version of the world-famous Bat Boy: The Musical, first shown in America in 1997. MGA's version will take place next week in the most appropriate of Edinburgh venues: The Caves.

The cast have been rehearsing around the clock, and we were lucky enough to be invited along for a little sneak preview before Monday's opening night performance.

Tickets for the show are priced between £7.50 (15yrs and under) and £10.50 and are available from the MGA Academy.
