

Edinburgh Festival Fringe Review: Truly Medley Deeply (*)

This Cambridge University Trio are a very skilled, fun-filled group who play medleys of pop songs using mandolin, synthesiser, violin, drum and guitar. They appeared on stage in beige, green and red catsuits with underwear worn outside a la Batman and Robin look.

They have been creating a bit of a stir on the Royal Mile during the day, so it was no surprise to see a packed house at the time of review. The musical mischief was certainly enjoyed by the audience who at times danced in the aisles. It also takes a brave group to ask the audience to shout out songs and put together a medley from the suggestions. They did it with ease and produced a really crowd pleasing show. Well worth a look for some light-hearted music.

Truly Medley Deeply have just finished their run at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe