

Trams to be brought to Edinburgh – but we don't need them!

- ❌ Council bosses are to spend £110,000 on shipping a fleet of trams they no longer need from Spain to Edinburgh.

And the ten redundant trams might have to be ferried back out to the continent – if the council can find a buyer for them.

The vehicles are considered surplus to requirements after a decision was taken to curtail the city's troubled tram route earlier this year.
