

Christmas Carols in the Fresh Air

Christmas Carols are nothing unusual at this time of the year, but singing Christmas Carols in Princes Street wearing only your undergarments? Yes it has to be a bunch of students! And it has nothing to do with running out of clean clothes to wear....

Last Saturday the students who run the radio station, Fresh Air, raised over £400, while singing carols in the city centre, and this weekend they plan to do it all over again. You will find them in Princes Street between 11 and 1. Give them a shout, or better still give them some of your loose change.

Fresh Air is Edinburgh's student run radio station. They broadcast online 24 hours a day with live shows during term time.
