

Joe Caslin's Our Nation's Sons – And now there are three!

Edinburgh is waking up this week to the ever-growing art project by Edinburgh College of Art student, Joe Caslin.

Caslin wants to redress the balance in favour of young people who, he believes, are considered in a bad light simply because of what they are wearing or how they speak.

To draw attention to this, Joe Caslin is pasting huge images of young hoodies in various places in the city centre. We have found all three put up so far, although we are not going to tell you the location of the third one unless you ask us by email – or you can tell everyone below! Do tell us if and when you find more! There are to be six in total.

Here is the video which explains the story behind the project.
