

Supermoon

Last night there was a Supermoon....

It is actually a bit of an optical illusion which the BBC Science department explain far better than we could here... but we knew enough about photography to realise that we would be better off outside the city away from the orange glow. So we headed for a hilltop in East Lothian just as the moon was coming over the southern horizon... We leapt out of the car and set up the tripods, and even in those couple of minutes it had cleared the line of hills. If you have any photos then please add them to our Flickr group or email them to us and we will add them to this article later today!

