

Property company offering funds to support Edinburgh clubs – apply now!

Ross and Liddell Community Bursary 2012 closing date fast approaching

The application deadline for Ross and Liddell's Community Bursary programme is fast approaching.

The Edinburgh property specialist is giving non-profit groups in the country the opportunity to apply for financial support of up to £500. With the closing date just over three weeks away, Irene Devenny, managing director at Ross and Liddell, is urging local groups to get involved.

She said: "Applications have been coming in thick and fast from a wide range of clubs and organisations, from football teams to community centres, youth organisations to mother and toddler groups, but there is still time to apply.

"Ross and Liddell has always identified and provided support to clubs and voluntary organisations as part of its ongoing community engagement objectives and we are delighted to be able to develop on this and provide funding with our bursary programme.

"We want to hear from applicants about how the funding will allow their group to continue to deliver work that has a true legacy and impact within their local community."

The bursary, which is now in its second year, has helped clubs and organisations pay for materials and services they might otherwise be unable to afford.

Any groups wishing to apply for funding from Ross and Liddell's Community Bursary 2012 should
