

Five things you need to know today

Woman injured in road collision – Bongo Club to get new base – Our notice project – Dads Rock – Submit your story

Police in Edinburgh are appealing for witnesses after an 82-year-old woman was injured in a road collision that happened yesterday afternoon.

The incident happened around 4.35pm, outside the Murrayfield Dental Practice in Corstorphine Road.

The woman was walking outside the practice when she was involved in a collision with a green Mini Cooper that was exiting the premises. She was knocked to the ground and suffered a fractured hip, and is currently receiving treatment at the Edinburgh Royal Infirmary.

Police are appealing to anyone who witnessed the incident to contact Lothian and Borders Police on 0131 311 3131.

The Bongo Club are set to have a new base from January 2013 at least on a temporary basis in the basement of The Central Library. Read more here.

Have you got involved in our notice project yet? Tweet or Instagram photos of things you either want to celebrate or #change in Edinburgh and they will be included in an interactive infographic which The Guardian are preparing. More details here in our earlier article and here on the #myhighstreet notice board. The photos have to be uploaded as soon as you can to get Edinburgh on the map!

The Edinburgh-based Dads Rock have shared their latest news with The Reporter.

*"We have amazing news! Aileen Campbell MSP, Minister for Children and Young people will be opening our second playgroup in The Prentice Centre, Grantown Mains Ave on Sat 27th of Oct at 10am.

So from that date Dads Rock will be running two Saturday playgroups a week, one at Gate55 Sighthill and one at The Prentice Centre, Grantown.

Both are still free and open to any Dad (and male carers) from 10-1130am. Free play, art stuff, snack, story time and music time."

You can get more information on the Dads Playgroup on their blog.

We would like to invite you to send your own stories to us. There are two ways to do this. If it is a story or even an idea for a story then use our Submit your Story form and you can upload photos that way too. So your story might just be a photo with a few words of explanation?

Or if you are running an event then please add it to our notice board of Edinburgh Events which you will find here..

There are more details including a phone number for us under the About Us section at the top of the site. Go on we would like to hear from you!