

Local writer celebrates Book Week Scotland

Local Writer, Marianne Paget, is celebrating the publication of her short story, Leith 1974, in an anthology titled My Favourite Place. The book will be distributed through libraries, workplaces, train stations etc. during Book Week Scotland which takes place from 26th November – 2 December 2012.

 Whats more, it's free.

There are also hundreds of events scheduled for the week throughout Scotland – check for details on the Scottish Book Trust website.

Marianne will be performing her story at Leith Library on Saturday 1 December 2012 at 3.30pm. She invites you to come along, pick up a free book and enjoy some cake!
