Fun! Fun! Fun! Savings! Savings! Savings! Would you like some?

The Edinburgh Reporter is delighted to offer our readers a sporty 2 for 1 entry to the Big Fun Run Edinburgh on 28 July 2013 – a saving of up to £11.49pp!

There are a huge number of running events to choose from each year but one series that has really caught the public's imagination is the Big Fun Run. The 2013 Big Fun Run is strictly for fun where it's all about relaxed exercise. No times, no pressure, no sweat – just some easy moves and lots of laughs. Over 7,000 people took part in 2012 raising over £100,000 for a variety of worthwhile charities.

Big Fun Run Edinburgh takes place at Holyrood Park on Sunday 28 July 2013. Holyrood Park is a 650 acre royal park a mile to the east of Edinburgh Castle. It has an array of hills and lochs and provides a remarkably wild piece of highland landscape.

 The Big Fun Runs have a quite unique flavour. They're all about participation; getting involved, having fun and enjoying the whole experience of the day. The events aren't timed so what's motivating Big Fun runners is getting together with friends and family, doing something healthy and enjoying the great outdoors.

Big Fun Runs are real family affairs with people taking part across the generations; it's not unusual to see a grandparent, mum and child all taking part. And you get lots of runners in fancy dress so that adds to the colour and humour of the occasion.

Are you getting a picture of something a little bit different? This isn't about testosterone charged elite athletes charging about in record times. It's about mums with prams, dads with toddlers on their shoulders, Fred Flintstone running round with his grandma. Throw in 101 dalmatians and you get a fantastic fun mix.
