

Edinburgh Festival Fringe – 'Melmoth the Wanderer'

The Assembly Rooms 2-25 August 2013

This show, which is an adaptation of Charles Maturin's text by Glasgow based playwright Nicola McCartney, is about a joyful polite choir group meets Melmoth, a distraught and tormented man is doomed to relive his tragic story for eternity. Unable to make their escape, the group's descent into hell is inevitable, terrifying and strangely hilarious.

Discover this dark comedy horror adaptation produced in a visual, anarchic and hysterically funny style from Northern Irish Theatre Company, Big Telly" The show is a revival of Big Telly's 2012 production which had a successful run at The Tron Theatre, Glasgow last February.
