

Property consultants secure three city centre deals

CKD Galbraith, the independent property consultancy, has completed three office space deals in the city centre in the last month.

Acting on behalf of landlord J. Smart & Co. (Contractors) PLC, the Partnership has let the second floor office at Cairncross House on Edinburgh's Union Street to Republic of Media, an independent communications planning company, on a five-year lease.

The 666 sq foot suite at the four-storey, purpose-built office building, situated in Broughton, has been recently refurbished.

And at Crichton House in Edinburgh's old town, the second floor mezzanine suite, which extends to approximately 650 sq ft, has been let to the Scottish Labour Party at a rent of £20 per sq ft.

CKD Galbraith acquired the modern open plan office development in 2011 for the private owner in an off-market deal for £1.62million. Other occupiers include national homeless charity Crisis and Scottish Building Employers Federation.

At 53 George Street, CKD Galbraith secured tenant Ellis IP, an intellectual property consultancy, in a second floor suite on behalf of landlord, The Stewart Society.

The redecorated office extends to 517 sq ft and is situated in one of Scotland's prime business locations. The space was secured on confidential terms for a three-year period.

Michael Clements, Marketing agent at CKD Galbraith said: -

“It’s really encouraging to see that increased levels of interest for office space at the start of the year has developed into real letting activity over the summer.”
