

The Nice Way Code launched today

The Scottish Government has spent some money on advertising new rules for cycle safety called The Nice Way Code. Pedal on Parliament has held two cycling rallies in Edinburgh in 2012 and 2013 when several thousand cyclists campaigned for infrastructure changes on our roads to promote cycle safety. POP also produced an eight point manifesto for action.

So far two videos have been published by the government which we reproduce for you here.

Oh and you can read the code here:-

Nice Way Code from Claire Wood

What do you think? Will it make you change your behaviour as a driver or a cyclist? Do send us your comments below.