

Learn about winter trees at Inveresk Lodge Garden

Winter trees and Christmas crafts are on the agenda at the National Trust for Scotland's Inveresk Lodge Garden in Musselburgh on 30 November.

Join ranger Stuart Whittaker for a tour of Inveresk's tree tops and learn how to identify which tree is which, even after all the leaves are gone. Then, get hands on and make some nature-themed festive decorations.

The even runs from noon until 1.30pm and costs £3 for adults and £2 for children.

The Musselburgh garden features a wide range of rare and unusual plants in an informal setting. It is a very sensoral garden and there is always something beautiful to smell and to see. It also boasts woodland and wildlife areas which are always popular with visitors.

Inveresk Lodge Garden is open all the year round from 10.00 until 17.00, or dusk if earlier.
