

Art exhibition in Leith opening today

Contemporary colour signals new exhibition in Leith

- New spring exhibition launches 13 March 2014
- Artists include Alison Cowan, Tommy Fitchet and Celia Forrest

A colourful collection of work from Scottish based artists will create the focal point of the new spring exhibition at art@37, 37 Bernard Street, Leith.

Running until the end of May, the exhibition features Scottish landscapes from Jacqueline Morrison, Tiffany inspired portraits from Ross Muir, Birds from Stanley Bird, florals from Alison Cowan, figurative work from Cecilia Forrest and humorous pieces from Elena Kourenkova.

Selected oils from landscape artist Dronma and abstracts from Edinburgh based Tommy Fitchet are also included in the colourful and uplifting exhibition.

art@37 in Bernard Street, Leith is a niche gallery based within the offices of PR firm Crossan Communications. Pop-up events and special exhibitions are a regular feature at this new style gallery.
