

Don't Do That Live to play biggest gig yet

Edinburgh-based indie rock band Don't Do That Live are to perform their largest ever headlining show this Friday 21 March 2014 at The Mash House, 37 Guthrie Street.

The band are already half way through their UK tour with Face the Ocean and King Canute who will be the Edinburgh support.

Don't Do That Live, who were founded in October 2013, have already released an album entitled Bad Idea, which can be purchased on iTunes.

The four-piece have played established Edinburgh venues such as Bannerman's, Cabaret Voltaire and Voodoo Rooms.

A spokesman for the band said: "This gig is our single biggest, and most important gig we have ever played and we'd love it if we could get a massive crowd to support us. So bring your friends and family, drag them by the heels if you need to, and help us create a night that will live long in the memory for everyone."

Tickets cost £5 and this is a 14+ gig.
