

Further appeal for missing Falkirk man

Police carrying out enquiries into the whereabouts of missing Falkirk man Kevin Kotrys have reason to believe he may have travelled to London.

Kevin Kotrys from Seaton Place, Falkirk, was last seen outside Cash Converters on Renfield Street, Glasgow, at 3.40pm on Sunday (13th April).

It is believed he travelled from Glasgow to Edinburgh on April 15th and indications now suggest he may be in London.

He has had no contact with family or friends and has not called into work since this last sighting, which is considered out of character.

Kevin is described as white, 6ft tall, large build, short dark hair. He was last seen wearing a black t-shirt under a red hooded top, blue jeans, black boots and possibly carrying a white carrier bag.

Inspector Paul Rollo from Police Scotland said: "We are continuing are appeal for anyone who may have seen Kevin, or has information on his whereabouts.

"We have reason to believe he may have travelled to London, via Edinburgh. Kevin's friends and family are very concerned about him as this is unusual behaviour for him.

"Anyone who believes they have seen Kevin, or may have information on his whereabouts, are urged to contact police immediately."

Those with information can contact Police Scotland on 101.
