

Police cordon lifted in Leith

✖ Police Scotland have confirmed that material has been removed from an address in Leith this afternoon, following a search conducted as part of an ongoing operation.

The material is likely to be destroyed by way of a small, controlled explosion carried out by the Army's Explosive Ordnance Disposal.

The police say that there is no risk to the public.

All cordons have been lifted in the area of Persevere Court and residents are being allowed back to their homes.