

Edinburgh Festival of Cycling 2014

The first Edinburgh Festival of Cycling was held last year and was hailed a great success by all those who organised, supported or attended the events.

So it is no great surprise that there is to be another this year taking place between 12 and 22 June 2014 at venues across the city.

We have seen an advance copy of the programme and there are so many events on offer it will be difficult to choose what to go to. We are having a wee thought about the night ride....starts at 23.00 on 20 June and finishes at 7.00am. 60 miles around the highways and byways of East Lothian on the summer solstice. After a rest stop in Dunbar you then head back to Leith for breakfast, all the while raising funds for Edinburgh charity It's good 2 give! on the way.

What about you? What will you be going to? Click here for the calendar of events which is being added to all the time.

The Edinburgh Reporter met with festival organiser, Kim Harding, to find out what it is all about.
