

Where to eat and drink – Nusou

Fresh tasty street food

There are now a host of great places serving seriously good street food in Edinburgh and many more for us to try!

Nusou bring you fresh, delicious, gourmet noodle Soups all cooked fresh to order with locally sourced and seasonal ingredients that are inspired by the excitement, passion and honesty of Asian Street Food. And they are part of the street food revolution in Edinburgh that you can catch regularly at Edinburgh Farmer's Market, The Tram Stop Market and The Grassmarket street food events.

They have a custom built Food Truck which stands out in black and bright green where they create their perfect Noodle Soups – having just sold our surf van I was feeling a bit nostalgic seeing their fancy mobile cooking equipment!

While you wait (a very short 3 minutes!) for your noodles you can stand back, listen to the music, and watch the chaps work quickly, assembling things to order. They have three size options with three central element choices: pork meatballs, chicken or tofu. These were served with an array of fresh vegetables, a carefully crafted broth and noodles. They have also started doing salad pots for the summer too.

With a brimming pot of tofu noodles, topped with peanuts and chilli and some healthy looking greenery I sat on a bench to enjoy my tasty little pot. It was fabulous – I loved it. Really tasty broth with lovely fresh vegetables and perfectly cooked noodles. I can highly recommend going to seek out Nusou soon and getting yourself one, the pork meatballs are next on my hit list.

They are also in the British Street Food finals too representing Scotland and will be in St Andrew Square Gardens for the Festival!

Follow them on Facebook.

Submitted by Carol Wilkin

