

The Gang Show is back

Hurry to get your tickets as this show is usually a sell-out! This year the annual Edinburgh Gang Show will be not only the biggest of its kind in the world but also the biggest production to be staged on the King's Theatre. With over 330 young people from the Scouting and Girlguiding movements, it will be a busy and exciting show!

Running from the 18th-22nd November at the King's Theatre, the Edinburgh Gang Show includes slick song and dance numbers from Michael Jackson to Disney's Frozen and many more, as well as topical comedy sketches.

Andy Johnston, the Edinburgh Gang Show Director said;

'This is my 12th year as Director and it features the largest cast ever assembled for an Edinburgh Gang Show. Over 330 young people will get to experience the amazing buzz that you only get when the houselights go down at the start of a Gang Show and that almighty roar resounds around the auditorium.'

It is a very, very special show, one which is forward looking, while at the same time keeping in line with the format that was created 82 years ago by Ralph Reader. The show is a reflection on what has happened throughout year and we strive to make sure there really is something for everyone.'

It will be a special occasion for the youngest female cast, the Brownies, as the section turned 100 years old in 2014! In celebration there will be a special Big Brownie Birthday number with 170 Brownies, in two casts, 70 more than usual! This party number includes songs from Sister Act and Hannah Montana.

This modern, fast paced and funny production is not a show about Scouting and Girlguiding it is a performance by those in Scouting and Girlguiding. It allows these young people the chance to develop their performance skills in a professional environment and continue to do something that they clearly enjoy and love.
