

Traverse Theatre – All or Nothing Aerial Theatre to premiere new production

All or Nothing Aerial Dance Theatre are about to take their new show on the road, but just before they do you have one chance to see it on Saturday night at the Traverse Theatre. This is part of the Manipulate Festival, the international festival of visual theatre and film.

Three's a Crowd is a production which crosses the boundaries between ground and air, expertly managing harness flying, aerial acrobatics, contemporary circus and dance theatre to present an exciting show for you. It delves into the inner workings of human relationships. The clue is in the name!

The Edinburgh Reporter met up with Jennifer Paterson, Artistic Director of All or Nothing Aerial Dance Theatre who directs the show:

The Edinburgh Reporter NEWS – All or Nothing from Phyllis Stephen on Vimeo.

The production also involves creative collaboration from writer Zoe Venditozzi and choreographer Brigid McCarthy. The show has been designed by Becky Minto, with lighting design by Kate Bonney, and is set to a powerful new score by Luke Sutherland.

All or Nothing is Scotland's leading aerial dance company creating, performing, training and helping to establish aerial arts in Scotland since 2006. <http://www.aerialdance.co.uk/>

Venue: The Traverse Theatre, 10 Cambridge Street, Edinburgh

EH1 2ED

Part of the Manipulate Festival, the international festival of visual theatre and film

Date: 31 January 2015

Time: 19:30

Tickets: £16, £12 conc, £8 conc

Box Office: 0131 228 1404 | <http://www.traverse.co.uk/whats-on> | boxoffice@traverse.co.uk

