Ryan Adams is to play two Scottish dates as part of his UK tour, which takes place at the end of this month.

The American-based singer-songwriter is to play Edinburgh's Usher Hall on February 24, as well as recently announcing a special seated show at Glasgow's O2 Academy the day before (February 23) due to demand.

Adams released his 14th and self-titled, self-produced album in September to positive critical and fan reviews. The album was produced and recorded at the musician's home recording studio, PAX AM, in Los Angeles, and released on his label of the same name.

In addition to the two Scottish dates, Ryan Adams will also play Brighton, Leicester, Leeds, London, Wolverhampton and Liverpool.
