

Earth Hour 2015

Buildings across Scotland participated in WWF's Earth Hour earlier this evening.

Countries across the world signed up to participate in turning off lights for 60 minutes from 8:30pm to 9:30pm in the evening local time in an effort to raise global awareness on climate change.

The campaign's goal is to get 1 billion people to switch off their lights as part of a global vote against climate change.

Pictured the Falkirk Kelpies go dark as Scotland celebrates Earth Hour. (Photograph: MAVERICK PHOTO AGENCY).