

Five things you need to know today

Free wifi on the trams

Consultation on student housing

Pedal on Parliament 2015

Lord Provost is running a marathon!

Exhibition showing off plans for the Causey

Edinburgh Trams say they are committed to giving the best possible travel experience to its customers, and one of the things they have done to ensure that is fit all the trams with wifi equipment.

This was enabled by funding from The City of Edinburgh Council's Capital Connected Programme last year.

The company say they are now looking to enhance this provision for customers. This month the next phase of the Wi-Fi project is being trialled on all trams.

Tom Norris, Director and General Manager said:

We're very excited about this next phase of our Wi-Fi project. On our trams you'll find links to news, entertainment, weather, funny stories and journey planning information.

This trial is a lite version which will run for the rest of March 2015. The complete service will be available later this year.

The full version will include a wealth of dynamically updated, highly relevant information with a focus on passengers getting the best out of the tram service and the Edinburgh and Lothians areas. Keep your eyes open for it.

The council has published a consultation on student housing in the city which you can have a look at here. This runs till 24 April 2015.

We went along to the City Chambers yesterday to meet up with the Lord Provost of the City of Edinburgh who is running in the London Marathon for charity. Anyone else out there going to London?

Edinburgh's Lord Provost to run in London Marathon from Phyllis Stephen on Vimeo.

Loading...

Taking too long?

↻ Reload document

| ↗ Open in new tab

Sign up here for a daily email from The Edinburgh Reporter !
[mc4wp_form]

If you are reading this article on paper and would like to visit the website then scan the QR code above with a smartphone or tablet and you will be taken straight there.