

Scottish Labour Manifesto 2015

Scottish Labour published their manifesto for the 2015 General Election which takes place on 7 May.

It was launched at the Tollcross Leisure Centre in Glasgow on Friday 17 April by Scottish Labour leader, Jim Murphy who is seeking re-election in his East Renfrewshire constituency which he has held since 2005. Previously he was MP for Eastwood and he has held the title of leader of Scottish Labour since 2014.

Jim Murphy said at the launch: "Scotland can unlock change or block change on Thursday 7th May.

"By voting Labour, Scotland will unlock change across the country. A vote for the SNP will result in another five years of Tory austerity, blocking change for millions of Scots.

"Our manifesto focuses on making work pay for working class Scots and saving the NHS from the crisis that has emerged on the SNP's watch."

You can read the whole manifesto document below:

Loading...

Taking too long?

Reload document

|  Open in new tab