

Plans for increased nursery provision in Edinburgh

Next week's Children and Families Committee will discuss proposals to spend £4.2m on nursery provision in the city improving and extending the facilities available.

The plans are set out in the Early Years Capital Investment report to be debated on 19 May 2015 and which will shortly become available here.

It would mean new early years facilities being built at Ferryhill Primary School (60:60 and 15 two-year-olds) and Tynecastle Nursery; both replacing the existing facilities but with increased capacity.

There would also be provision for permanent replacement nursery provision at Leith Primary School (40:40 and 15 two-year-olds) and improvements made to Blackhall Nursery, a voluntary sector partner provider.

The announcement follows previous investment of £5.7m which will deliver replacement and /or expanded early years facilities at Longstone Primary School, Granton Early Years Centre, Davidson's Mains Primary School, Corstorphine Primary School, Fox Covert Primary Schools and the new St John's RC Primary School.

The new facility at Fox Covert Primary Schools is due to open in August 2015 in addition to two other new nurseries at Duddingston and Wardie Primary Schools meaning a total of 11 new or replaced/extended nurseries have been identified.

Councillor Paul Godzik, Education, Children and Families Convener for the City of Edinburgh Council, said: "The £4.2m announcement for further new early years provision will be welcomed by many parents across the city as we are replacing older nurseries with new high quality buildings and extra places are being provided.

“Investing in early years and delivering quality, affordable childcare is a priority for the Council. We are committed to providing the best start in life for every child and ensuring they are ready to succeed as they grow up.”

Tynecastle Nursery head teacher Stella Brown said: “This is really exciting news and everyone’s looking forward to having a new building as the existing nursery has been here since 1929. It has served generations of local families well but it needs to be updated to meet the requirements for working with younger children and providing support for parents.

“A nursery for young children is about the whole environment, indoors and out. The current site is a very important green space where children play and learn outdoors, benefiting from fresh air and energetic play every day. In a city centre nursery, placing value on the improved building whilst maintaining the ‘oasis’ outdoors is vital. I am sure the new building will be an outstanding facility for future generations in Gorgie and Dalry.”

The Scottish Government has provided £9.892m of the funding after new legislation expanded free nursery provision from 475 hours to 600 hours a year for all three and four-year-olds and some two-year-olds.
