

Water problems near Holy Corner tonight

Following a burst water main at Holy Corner this evening some people may still be without water supply. If that is you then do let us know!

There were some fabulous photos on Twitter of a plume of water shooting high above the street there. Chris Highcock first alerted us to the problems....

@EdinReporter Holy Corner. I don't think this is supposed to be happening pic.twitter.com/ZGNkAM2l1Z

– Chris Highcock (@chrishighcock) May 19, 2015

@EdinReporter they've taken out a fire hydrant. The valve is broken from what I can pick up. JCB parked over it at the moment – Chris Highcock (@chrishighcock) May 19, 2015

A wee issue at Holy Corner! Biblical flooding! @BBCScotlandNews pic.twitter.com/02uNLMuQfD

– Dougie Porteous (@dougiep14) May 19, 2015

Dougie P also captured a little video...

@scottish_water Wee fountain at Holy Corner! #biblicalflood pic.twitter.com/VZeQCwVsc6

– Dougie Porteous (@dougiep14) May 19, 2015

Neville is certainly having a few problems with water in his flat @EdinReporter Still a bit damp out there at Holy Corner. Water just about coming out of the taps!

pic.twitter.com/uF01W3rIkl

– Neville Lawther (@Neuraldance) May 19, 2015

A Scottish Water spokesman said: " We are responding to reports of damage to a hydrant at Holy Corner. We are aware of flooding on the road and are on site working to resolve this matter as quickly as possible. Customers in the area may experience some disruption to their water supply in the meantime."