

Edinburgh Festival Fringe 2015 – Katharine Ferns

Known for her dry and raw sense of humour, Katharine appears to be a sweet Canadian comic, but stories about her misadventures are both dark and brutally funny. From her eccentric family, romantic failures, depression, and drugs, to her struggles for redemption, Katharine finds humour (but necessarily solutions) in all her mistakes. As her therapist once explained: “Katharine is a conscious incompetent. She is aware of all her problems but she is unable to fix any of them.” With this diagnosis, what else can you do but laugh?

In 2012, she was a finalist in Toronto's Funniest Comedian at Just For Laughs (JFL42). She has opened for Big Jay Oakerson, Ari Shaffir, Kurt Metzger, Tom Segura, Sam Tripoli, Baron Vaughn, Brian Redban from Deathsquad, and Brendon Walsh. Katharine was featured on ichannel (Canada's political and social issues network) in the stand-up series No Kidding, and as a panellist on Inside Joke in 2014. She also hosted a monthly show COMEDY INFERNO, and was the weekly headliner at the Hot Box in Toronto.

In 2014, Katharine moved to the UK to continue her career in her family's home country. That year she was a finalist in the Laughing Horse New Act competition, and this year she has arrived at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival with her debut solo show Conscious Incompetent.
