

Edinburgh Festival Fringe 2015 – Joey Page : Catastrophe Party

✘ It's Joey Page's 10 year anniversary as a stand-up comedian. He's managed to haul himself onto mainstream TV but tragically even that achievement has not prevented this thirty year old failure from living at his mum's house. Come to his 'Catastrophe Party' and celebrate the wake of Joey Page's career.

In his own words, Joey is "a stand-up comedian on the verge of quitting stand-up after 10 years of nearly making it. ("After ten years I think that I may possibly quit") Joey will be returning to the Edinburgh Fringe this year with his unique brand of surreal, and slightly downtrodden comedy. His 2015 performances will be his 7th and possibly last at the festival, come and watch as Joey reflects on how being known for being on BBC 3's comedy marathon, Nevermind the Buzzcocks and Noel Fielding's Luxury Comedy, just can't seem to help him break through into the mainstream or get him out of his childhood bedroom.

Joey Page: Catastrophe Party

Thursday 6th – Friday 7th August (Previews)

Saturday 8th – Sunday 30th August (not Tues 18th)

Underbelly Cowgate, Delhi Belly

8:00pm (60 mins)

Tickets £6 – £11

<http://www.underbellyedinburgh.co.uk/whats-on/joey-page-catastrophe-party>

<http://www.joey-page.co.uk>

<http://www.twitter.com/thejoeypage>

/

Submitted by Live Nation

