

Five things you need to know today

The Edinburgh Reporter Live blog is on today

Hopetoun Honey Ice Cream

Planning matters

Forth Bridge

EdinburghReportage – the view from your deckchair...

Join in with our LiveBlog running all day today. If you want to tell us about something that is going on in Edinburgh now is your big chance to have a big audience!

To join in by using Twitter then just use the hashtag TERLive!

You can read about everything that happens in the capital as it unfolds here.

To celebrate National Ice Cream month this July, Hopetoun Farm Shop in South Queensferry has created a sweet treat – with the help of the Hopetoun honeybees and a Scottish Borders Ice Cream Parlour.

Hopetoun Farm Shop has enlisted the help of Giacobazzi's to make delicious honey ice cream, created using the honey from the Hopetoun Estate's beehives. The Eyemouth Ice Cream company have combined their quality, locally sourced ingredients with Hopetoun honey to make the limited-edition ice cream, exclusively available in the shop.

The honeybees, managed by Murray McGregor and his team at Denrosa, were brought to Hopetoun Estate ten years ago to aid in the pollination of the arable crops, wild flowers and trees that adorn the land at Hopetoun. The Estate is now home to 16 groups of honeybees, which, in the peak season, can contain up to 12 millions bees. Jars of the home grown honey are also available to buy in Hopetoun Farm Shop.

Marc Cherrie, Hopetoun Farm Shop General Manager, commented "We work closely with artisan food producers to create new and exciting products, using ingredients and produce from Hopetoun Estate, that our customers will love."

Hopetoun Honey Ice Cream is now available to buy in Hopetoun Farm Shop, costing £2.99 per 120ml tub.

Planning does matter in a city like Edinburgh where we have a World Heritage Site or two to look after.

Marion Williams of Edinburgh's Cockburn Association explains their view of the latest decision on the new multi use complex at St James Quarter in our article here.

Edinburgh now has a new World Heritage Site within its boundaries. The Forth Bridge is well known and well-loved by all of us who live here, but now it is to be our sixth World Heritage Site following a direction of UNESCO at their meeting yesterday.

Read more here.

So you're off on your holidays. But not all of us turn off when we go abroad. So perhaps you would like to send us the view from your deckchair while you relax there in the sun?

Perhaps you would add to our site EdinburghReportage over here. When the storyboard is full enough we will share the photos, video or your musings from the beach on The Edinburgh Reporter.

And if you're not on the beach then we will gladly accept the view from your holiday destination – just let us know where you are! (and we hope you have a good time!)

Sign up here for a daily email from The Edinburgh Reporter !
[mc4wp_form]

If you are reading this article on paper and would like to visit the website then scan the QR code above with a smartphone or tablet and you will be taken straight there.