

We're going to a #Zomatoparty!

This Friday Waverley Station is to be transformed into a food-lovers' paradise.

Foodies will get the chance to sample the best food and drink at Waverley Station tomorrow, to mark restaurant app Zomato's 7th birthday.

The birthday party, in partnership with Network Rail and Localmotive Markets, takes place on Waverley Station's Platform 2 from 5-7 pm, featuring street food and drinks from local favourites including Thistly Cross Cider, Hula Juice bar and Leith's Punjabi Junction.

One lucky reveller will also win a return ticket to London and a meal for two at the luxury St. James' Court Hotel.

Zomato, whose Scotland team is based in Old Town's CodeBase, launched in Edinburgh in April 2014, and boasts a network of local bloggers and foodies visiting and reviewing restaurants across the city.

Zomato Scotland's Claudio Colarossi said: "It's amazing that we've been able to partner with Network Rail and Waverley Station to put on a party with a difference for our users. Over the past year we've seen just how much the people of Edinburgh really appreciate good food, so we can't wait to share the celebrate with foodies from Edinburgh and beyond."

The celebrations will be mirrored by other Zomato parties including ones in London and Auckland, New Zealand.
