

What's On in Edinburgh this week

Art, drama, books, films – and lots of gardening – this week. If you see yourself as the next Jimmy Hendrix, The Voodoo Rooms have a big treat for you on Wednesday. And if you find that all a tad too noisy, what about yoga at the Eric Liddell Centre on Friday? We cater for all tastes here... Have a great week!

Please remember to check details with the organisers of any event before setting out.

MONDAY 6TH JULY 2015

Pioneering a New Art in Russia: in the first three decades  of the 20th century, the Russian Avant-Garde made an outstanding contribution to Western sculpture and painting, especially in pioneering the move into abstraction. Curator and academic Professor Christina Lodder (University of Kent) will look at how artists working in Russia combined Western creative developments with their native traditions (the icon and the lubok) to produce distinctive works in the style of Neo-Primitivism, Cubo-Futurism, Suprematism and Constructivism. 12.45-1.15pm, Level Two, Scottish National Gallery of Modern Art ONE, Belford Road. Free and unticketed.

TUESDAY 7TH JULY 2015

Turquerie: An 18th Century European Fantasy. As part of the  Liotard series of talks, Haydn Williams, an expert on the decorative arts and former Director of the Objects of Vertu department at Sotheby's, explores the artistic phenomenon known as Turquerie, which captured the imagination of the courts of Europe in the 18th century. Travellers' accounts of the Ottoman lands, translations of works such as One Thousand and One Nights, and the magnificent spectacle of Ottoman ambassadors and their retinues were among the catalysts that inspired this whimsical fantasy. Haydn Williams will discuss how turquerie manifested itself in the arts – from painting, architecture, and interiors to the theatre – across Europe. 12.45-1.30pm, Hawthornden Lecture Theatre, Scottish National Gallery, The Mound. Free and unticketed.
