

Edinburgh Festival Fringe 2015 REVIEW Pip Utton Playing Maggie ****

✘ by Michael Casey

There were people in the midday show, who had seen his Churchill and his Hitler and were now going for the hat-trick. They were not disappointed in what was a wonderful one man show of a one off woman.

Tour-de-force is an over-used word but this was.

From his portrayal of the conflicted actor preparing to go on, to the speech "she" makes early on.

But then there is the Q and A with the audience, which was very skilful indeed.

Every question answered and all in the tone, in the style and directly as you would expect from the controversial prime minister.

Michael Casey is the Editor of YourThurrock and this review is a collaboration between The Edinburgh Reporter and YourThurrock, two of the many hyperlocal news websites in the UK.