

Edinburgh Trams now running earlier

Edinburgh Trams is to start a six week 'red eye' trial tomorrow morning, giving passengers the opportunity to travel to and from Edinburgh Airport at earlier times in the day.

It is hoped that the trial, announced earlier this month, will help passengers make earlier flight times and improve the service provided at Ingliston Park and Ride.

Ian Craig, Chief Executive of Transport for Edinburgh, said:

"After 16 months of successful passenger service it is only right that we look again at passenger demand and this trial will help to determine any timetable enhancements that we can make in the future.

"For us it's all about continuously improving the experience for our passengers and, throughout the course of the year, we've worked hard to review and update our service with positive results so far.
