

New flights from Edinburgh to Tallinn from May

Nordic Aviation have announced that they are to start flying between Edinburgh Airport and Tallinn three times a week from 28 May until 3 October. The summertime flights will be operated along with Adria Airways on CRJ-900 jets.

Edinburgh Airport's Chief Executive Gordon Dewar said: "We are delighted that Edinburgh Airport has a direct new flight into Tallinn and the three times weekly service which is perfectly-timed for weekend city-breaks.

"This announcement is yet further confirmation of Edinburgh Airport's position as the leader for business and tourism connectivity between Scotland and international destinations.

"It is greatly encouraging that Nordic Aviation recognises the growing demand for connectivity to and from Edinburgh – and this new service adds to our city's and Scotland's growing international profile.

"With over 11 million passengers through the doors at Edinburgh Airport in 2015 – we are continuing to grow, create jobs and make a positive contribution for Scotland's economy."

Nordic Aviation board member Erik Sakkov added that he is delighted to announce this exciting addition to Nordic Aviation's schedule: "Edinburgh's rich historical heritage makes it perfect for Estonian holiday makers who will enjoy a unique combination of ancient Scottish and modern European culture. Moreover, I'm sure that Tallinn and Estonia have a lot to offer for Scottish people too. Our country's beautiful medieval capital, which is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, Estonia's diverse nature and fascinating cultural traditions make it possible that everyone will find something for themselves.”
