

Woman and toddler found injured in street

A police enquiry is underway after a woman and toddler were found injured on Stenhouse Street West at around 4.30am this morning.

The pair were taken to hospital where they were treated for non life-threatening injuries.

A spokesman for Police Scotland said: "A 35-year-old woman and 22-month-old were found injured in the street.

"Both were taken to the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh for treatment. However, at this time it is not thought that either has sustained life-threatening injuries.

"Inquiries into the full circumstances surrounding this incident are ongoing."
