

Concern for missing Falkirk woman who failed to turn up for work in Edinburgh

Police in Forth Valley are appealing for information to help trace a 21-year-old woman reported missing.

Hanna Sabic, who lives in Falkirk, was last seen at Grahamston Station shortly before 8am yesterday. She works in the Capital and is believed to have got a train to Edinburgh, however, she did not arrive at work or return home that evening and concern is growing for her welfare.

Hanna is described as white with a pale complexion, slim build and 5ft 5inches tall.

She has short black hair with a fringe, and speaks with a soft Australian accent.

She was last seen wearing a sleeveless red and white sundress, black tights, black shoes and carrying a fawn-coloured handbag.

Inspector Billy Drummond of Falkirk said: "It's out of character for Hanna not to arrive at work, or return home to her young son.

"We are very concerned for Hanna's welfare and are appealing for the public's help as part of our efforts to trace her.

"Anyone who may have seen Hanna since Monday morning, either on the train or elsewhere, is asked to get in touch.

"Also, if Hanna sees this appeal, I'd urge her to contact us or her family and let us know she is safe and well."

Anyone with information is asked to contact Police Scotland on 101.
