

Edinburgh Festival Fringe at The Circus Hub – The Hogwallops

We reported favourably on these guys during last year's Festival and they were every bit as entertaining this time around. And, rather than repeat what we've already said, a bit about what they and the show are about can be found here.

This was another round of acting, action, danger, flying, baking, several bananas – for those of a nervous disposition, one does meet an untimely end – and a minor love interest involving the audience....

All of which adds up to a show with something for everyone of every age.

So, rather than reading about what you can see, let the small gallery here give you a pictorial taste of what to expect.

The Hogwallops at the Circus Hub

The show is on from 4th-22nd August – they get a couple of days off! – and ticketing (£10) and other information is available on the Underbelly website.

A fuller gallery of images will be available to view here over the next couple of days