

Children's soft play sessions for those with additional support needs

The city body which aims to get everyone moving, Edinburgh Leisure, believes that play is for everyone and that some children and families may need more support than others to get active and stay active, and so they are introducing a specific soft play session for children with additional support needs.

These sessions will take place every Wednesday from 9am-10am at Clambers at the Royal Commonwealth Pool.

These sessions have been specifically designed to provide an inclusive service and will be appropriate for families of children with additional support needs including autism, cerebral palsy, sight and hearing impairments, global developmental delay, and genetic disorders.

Clambers offers opportunities for all children to have an amazing adventure with carefully designed baby, toddler and junior zones. There's a comfortable café with uninterrupted views serving quality coffee with tasty and healthy treats for both parents and children.

Sessions cost £1.10 for children aged 0-11 months, £4.20 for children aged 12 months – 3 years, £5.20 for children aged 4 years and up. Siblings without additional support needs are very welcome to attend the sessions too.
