

Edinburgh Quartet – Rush Hour Concert 25 October 2016

The Edinburgh Quartet will play their Rush Hour Concert tomorrow evening at St Andrew's and St George's West Church at 5.30pm. A lovely way to end your day at work and help you to unwind on the way home!

Mairi Campbell and Alasdair Nicolson will join the EQ with Nicolson's String Quartet No 3 Slanting Rain.

Written in 2015 for the Edinburgh Quartet in memory of his mother, the piece takes Gaelic folksong as its inspiration. As well as exploring the work in detail with Alasdair Nicolson, Mairi Campbell and the quartet will improvise on the same themes in what promises to be a fascinating collaboration.
