

Hamleys head for Scotland

The London toy store that is a mecca for children from all over the world is coming to Scotland with the announcement of a store opening in Livingston Designer Outlet.

The toys will be on sale at a range of reduced prices when it opens tomorrow 12 October 2016 with just 76 shopping days to visit before Christmas.

The lease of the 1500 square feet store is another new opening at the outlet shopping destination bringing the total amount of space let this year to almost 21,000 square feet.

Karen Stewart, Centre Manager at Livingston Designer Outlet, said: "Hamleys is exciting news for us, ahead of one of the busiest periods of the year for shoppers, and we're delighted to be bringing something brand-new for the Christmas season. We're committed to delivering a unique shopping experience for customers, especially those looking to secure quality premium products at great prices."
