Last night at the City Chambers the Lord Provost was joined by many of those who have been helped by the charity OneCity Trust to launch his 2017 Burns Supper

The Lord Provost the Rt Hon Donald Wilson is holding a Burns Supper in January 2017 to raise funds for OneCity Trust. X Factor's Caitlyn Vanbeck sang at the launch and will be among the entertainers in January.

Caitlyn Vanbeck the young singer from Tranent who shot to our notice on X Factor provided the entertainment, and the City Chambers certainly came alive!

Other entertainment on the night will be provided by actor Christopher Biggins and comedian Susan Morrison.

The Lord Provost, Donald Wilson, said: "The OneCity Trust is a charity close to my heart. Scotland's great Capital has much to be proud of, but there are many people who do not have access to the privileges living in Edinburgh brings. It is my mission to tackle all forms of social exclusion in the city and to bring about a true sense that we all belong in 'One City'."

The charity helps to fight against social exclusion across the city and The Lord Provost's 'Rapid Action Fund' is established within the framework of the OneCity Trust. The purpose is to provide resources for swift action on social exclusion and locally identified needs. This is done through the award of small grants to charities or constituted groups within Edinburgh.
