

Scottish Group to back Elton John in 2017

The Boxtones are a Scottish band with a big year in store.

Formed in Edinburgh in 2007 they have travelled with other big names including The Who and Kaiser Chiefs, and this year they are to travel with Sir Elton John.

The band is made up of Louise Peel from Leith, Gary Tierney from Glasgow and Gary's sister Gill also from Fernhill in Glasgow.

The line-up is completed by Will Janssen on keyboards and Patrick Thibault on bass.

In 2015, The Boxtones were signed to Universal Music MENA, and their debut album 'Home' was released worldwide on November 25th 2016. After three commercial releases from their debut album, which have received critical acclaim, new single 'Do I Look Like Somebody You Could Love' will be released this Valentine's Day and will be available on all digital platforms.
