

Sisteray in Edinburgh in March

✖ London garage punk band Sisteray are about to hit the road for their UK tour.

The tour will include a show at Edinburgh's Henry's Cellar Bar on 10 March.

SISTERAY, songwriters Niall Rowan (vocals) and Dan Connolly (guitar) along with Marco Polo (drums) and Mick Hanrahan (bass guitar) have set out their intention to re-write the indie guitar rule book.

Sisteray came together out of their shared love for bands such as The Smiths, Velvet Underground, The Clash and The Replacements. This is proven in the upbeat melodies and lyrical observations of 21st century Britain, combined with high-octane live performances that have been key to making their live shows unmissable.

Sisteray's belief and passion in their music, as well as their strong political views has been seldom seen since the days of The Clash; with Dan recently asked to appear on primetime BBC News, ITV and The Independent to voice his views on the recent Syria debate. Word is beginning to spread in the likes of BBC Radio 1, Radio X, Fresh on the Net, Louder Than War, Artrock, BBC 6 Music, Subculture, GigsLutz, Time Out and The Londonist and in another statement of intent, the band have renamed their blog 'Sisteray – The Road To Reading Festival 2016'.

www.sisteray.com

www.facebook.com/sisterayuk www.twitter.com/sisterayuk