

Lord Provost thanks the city's panto stars

Earlier in the week the Lord Provost the Rt Hon Donald Wilson held a small reception for the city's panto stars Allan Stewart, Grant Stott and Andy Gray.

The trio turned up without make up and costumes but the Lord Provost was anxious to show them his own and put on the ermine robes and his chain. (no make-up though...)

Lots of fun today with @LordProvostEdin thanking @GrantStottOnAir @AndyGray59 and Allan Stewart for all the panto fun they create pic.twitter.com/HztR10Mto2

– Edinburgh Reporter (@EdinReporter) March 2, 2017

The afternoon was full of fun and gags as you might expect from the three stars who work together at other times of the year not just at Christmas.

The Lord Provost said he wanted to be sure that their hard work in making people laugh did not go unnoticed.

